TCPALaw.com is the number one source for research and support of Telephone Consumer Protection Act litigation. Originally begun in 1996 as a repository of research materials and case law for litigants and attorneys, the site has grown exponentially in the last few years. Because of the significant increase in TCPA cases and large number of users accessing the site desiring more features, maintaining the site has become a full time endeavor. Because of the rising costs in both time and money to operate the site, it has been decided to make TCPALaw.com a subscription based service in order to defray those costs, hire programmers, and retain a full time webmaster to enhance the site. As a public service, subscriptions are free to sitting judges and their clerks when used for court business.

Citation to TCPA Reports. TCPA Reports is a topical slip reporter service and the permanent electronic reporter of TCPALaw.com. All decisions reported in TCPA Reports can be retrieved by their TCPA Rep. citation. TCPA Reports citations are also in Google, so a Google search for a TCPA Rep. citation will return the caselaw index on TCPA Law.com with the full citation of the case.

What your subscription entitles you to:

- Instant e-mail notification of new decisions and case law.
- Access to the library of over 270 TCPA decisions - most unavailable in any other reporter.
- Enhanced caselaw pages with both headnotes and fulltext, plus scanned PDF versions of all decisions not published elsewhere.
- New topical caselaw indexes organizing caselaw by issues decided.
- New TCPA-specific headnote system.
- New state-specific caselaw pages.
- New full text searching of the caselaw library and sitewide searching.
- FCC document library, with linked research tools annotating relevant FCC rules and orders.
- ... and much more!

Please respect the hard work that it takes to find, typeset, link, and compile the information on the site. While subscriptions for judges and their clerks are provided free of charge, there is a modest subscription fee of $220.00 annually for individuals and small law firms. We think that the subscription fee is reasonable and a great value compared to what is received. Over 97% of the subscription fee goes directly to maintaining and upgrading the site. No one is getting rich here, and we appreciate your subscription. However, we must receive sufficient revenue to keep the site running, so please do not provide files from the site to others who are not entitled to them.

If your court has rendered any written decisions in TCPA cases, please send them to us for inclusion in our caselaw database. Please e-mail editor@tcpalaw.com for assistance in sending us your court decisions.

Fee Waivers: As a public service in the original spirit of amicus curiae, access to the case law and some features of the site will be provided free of charges (subject to limitations) to sitting judges and their clerks, including small claims court magistrates. Simply follow the instructions on the application to request a fee waiver.

NOTICE: TCPALaw.com uses e-mail for important communications with you. We will not, however, respond to e-mail "challenges" or whitelist responses. If you uses such a system in your e-mail, no refunds will be given because you do not receive our e-mails.
