TERMS:

Subscriber agrees that access to TCPALAW.COM Internet domain (the site) is restricted and covered by the terms of this application and the terms of service posted on that site. Those terms may be modified at any time at the sole discretion of the operators of the site. Providing any false or misleading information in order to access the contents of the site, or to receive any other benefit is prohibited and will be considered theft, computer trespass, and a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1030. Such acts may also constitute copyright infringement of the rights of the individual authors and copyright holders who may pursue independent remedies. Venue for any dispute arising out of this agreement or the use of the site shall be St. Louis Missouri.

Subscriber agrees to abide by the terms of service on the site at <http://www.tcpalaw.com/disclaimer.htm>, and will not engage in any activities prohibited by those terms of service. Subscriber will keep their password and other access codes strictly confidential and Subscriber is fully responsible for all access and use of their userID and passwords used to access the site. Attorneys and law firm employees must complete the shaded area above.

Subscriber will not at any time, including after termination of the subscription, post to the Internet, web sites, USENET, or otherwise publish or distribute documents obtained from the site in any manner whatsoever, other than inclusion in legal documents filed with a court and copies of court filings required by law or rule of court to be made to other entities. Subscriber will not lease, lend, resell, or otherwise share access to the site with any other entity, or access the site on behalf of any other entity.

Subscriber will not employ any spider, robot, or other automated software or process to download any portion of the contents of the site. Subscriber will not send unsolicited commercial e-mail (a/k/a SPAM), viruses, or any other unwanted or harmful communications whatsoever to any person or address obtained from the site or obtained through use of the site.

Subscriber agrees that access to the site is subject to revocation at the discretion of the site operators. Subscriber's only remedy in the event that their subscription is terminated shall be refund of a pro rated subscription fee, except in the event of any use in violation of the terms of this agreement. Subscriber acknowledges that Margulis Law Group ("MLG") is damaged by actions in violation of either this agreement or the terms of service of TCPALaw.com, and Subscriber agrees that liquidated damages equal to twice the current highest current annual subscription rate shall be due to MLG for each such violation. Subscriber agrees that MLG shall be entitled to said liquidated damages without proof of any actual damages. This provision as well as the provision regarding posting or otherwise distributing documents obtained from this site shall survive the termination of the subscription.

Thank you for your interest in the TCPALaw.com site. Please fill out the application form, sign it, and send the completed form with payment to the address on the bottom of the application. Unfortunately, we can not accept credit cards, PayPal, or other electronic payments. But we will freely accept your personal or your firm's check.

TCPALaw.com is the number one source for research and support of Telephone Consumer Protection Act litigation. Originally begun in 1996 as a repository of research materials and case law for litigants and attorneys, the site has grown exponentially in the last few years. Because of the significant increase in TCPA cases and large number of users accessing the site desiring more features, maintaining the site has become a full time endeavor. Because of the rising costs in both time and money to operate the site, it has been decided to make TCPALaw.com a subscription based service in order to defray those costs, hire programmers, and retain a full time webmaster to enhance the site.

Paid subscriptions for individuals or small law firms (two or fewer attorneys) are only $250.00 annually. Larger firms, or firms involved in assignment practices should e-mail subscriptions@TCPALaw.com for rates.

As a public service, subscriptions are free to sitting judges and their clerks when used for court business.

What your subscription entitles you to:

- E-mail notification of new decisions and case law.
- Access to the library of over 400 TCPA decisions - many unavailable in any other reporter.
- Enhanced caselaw pages with both headnotes and fulltext, plus scanned PDF versions of all decisions not published elsewhere.
- Topical caselaw indexes organizing caselaw by issues decided.
- TCPA-specific headnote system.
- State-specific caselaw pages.
- Custom headnotes system for caselaw.
- Full text searching of the caselaw library and sitewide searching.
- Enhanced briefing library.
- Full text searching of the FCC comments.
- Enhanced directory of TCPA experienced attorneys.
- FCC document library, with linked research tools annotating relevant FCC rules and orders.
- ... and much more!

Please respect the hard work that it takes to find, typeset, link, and compile the information on the site. We think that the subscription fee is modest and a great value compared to what is received. Over 97% of the subscription fee goes directly to maintaining and upgrading the site. We appreciate your subscription.

Fee Waivers: As a public service in the original spirit of amicus curiae, access to the case law and some features of the site will be provided free of charges (subject to limitations) to sitting judges and their clerks, including small claims court magistrates. Simply follow the instructions on the application to request a fee waiver.

Law Firms: For firms with more than two attorneys, subscriptions are based on the size of the firm. Rather than limit access to only a single or limited group of attorneys, all attorneys in your firm will be allowed access under your subscription. Documents and access may not, however, be provided to attorneys outside your firm. Please contact us for details. Some law firms and attorneys have attempted to obtain individual subscriptions for use within their firms. This is theft of service and prohibited, and will subject the firm and those involved to civil suit, criminal charges, and a bar complaint. Individual Attorneys: Attorneys that are affiliated with a law firm must obtain a subscription through the firm, and not as individuals or solo practitioners.

Assignments: Law firms and any entities involved in claims based on assignments of TCPA claims must subscribe at the rate for assignment practices.

IMPORTANT E-MAIL NOTICE: TCPALaw.com uses e-mail for important communications with you. We will not, however, respond to e-mail "challenges" or whitelist responses. If you use such a system or other "SPAM blocker" functions in your e-mail, no refunds will be given because you do not receive our e-mails.
